FIRE DESTROYS HOME IN BIRCHWOOD

THE ALASKA STATE FERRY TUSTUMENA AT SEATTLE DOCK, GETS READY TO SAIL FOR THE FORTY-NINTH STATE.

BIRCHWOOD: A fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the John Bridgers home on the Birchwood Road Monday afternoon.

The fire broke out while the Bridgers were away from home. The blaze was discovered by Vollet Gidcumb, an employee of the H & H Nursery Supply, which is located next door to the Bridgers home.

Both the Chugiak and Eagle River Fire Companies responded to the alarm, but the fire had progressed too far to enable them to save the house.

The Bridgers had moved to Birchwood from Anchorage only two weeks ago. Mr. Bridger is an employee of THE Anchorage Cold Storage. The have three children, all boys, aged 13, 3 and 1 year respectively. The Bridgers lost all of their personal effects in the fire and donations of clothing or household items are being collected for them by neighbors.

Mrs. Bridgers wears a women's size 10, and Mr. Bridgers wears a man's extra large size shirt and 42 by 32 trousers. Donation may be left at either the John Boyles residence on the Birchwood Road or at the Ing Tofson residence also on the Birchwood Road, or at the State Troopers residence on Aurora St. in the Phillips subdivision in Eagle River.

One possible cause of the fire that is being considered is that it might have been caused by a cigarette.

The fire had apparently begun in the bedroom and there was evidence that it had been smoldering for several hours prior to its discovery. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

ASSEMBLYMAN BRIGGS ANSWERS TAX QUESTIONS

CHUGIAK: Assemblyman from section one, Glenn Briggs, in response to the many questions he has been asked concerning Borough taxation, has composed the following question and answer feature for the benefit of the residents of the area.

QUESTION: For what purpose will the tax revenues collected from this area be used?

KNIK ALL STARS TROUNCED BY KENAI TEAM

PALMER: The Knik Little League All Stars lost the second game of the tournament to the team from Kenai by a score of 18 to 2.

The first game of the tournament was played yesterday in Palmer between Fort Richardson and Turnagain, with the Ft. Rich team winning by one point with a 3 to 2 score.

Ft. Rich will meet Kenai today at 3pm to determine who will be the champions and go on to play at Fairbanks.

Knik will meet the Matanuska team (who had gone down to Ft. Richardson 16 to 0) in a consolation match on Wednesday.

ALASKA'S NEWEST FERRY DUE HERE SOON

SEATTLE: The state's newest ferry the Tustumena, was due in Seattle last weekend, and tentatively scheduled to head north for Alaska this coming Friday, according to Greg Managan, Director of the Division of Marine Transportation.

Invitations have gone out to mayors of 18 Alaskan cities to travel from Seattle on the Tustumena.

The seagoing vessel, built in Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin is now on the last leg of its voyage around the continent, cruising north from San Diego, California.

Mangan said the Tustumena has experienced no major mechanical failures thus far, is functioning smoothly. It is to go to the Seattle shipyard for routine inspection and painting below the water line before it will officially be turned over to the State, he said.

MORE FOR THEIR MONEY
This issue of the Courier marks the beginning of a new method of printing.

With the arrival of our new automatic copy setting equipment we now can offer our readers regular newspaper style type which will be clearer, easier to read and with the even margins that gives it the professional look.

Of course, like all new things, we must get used to our new machines, and for the next few issues we will probably make some unusual typographical errors. However, we hope the readers will be patient, and in a short time, we should have all the "bugs" ironed out.

The smaller size type will offer a number of advantages. We will now not find it necessary to continue so many articles on a following page; a feature that so many of (next col) you found objectionable.

Also, since the type is smaller, it will no take as much room to print the local news as in the past. We do not plan on decreasing the size of the Courier, however; instead we will now be able to print many of the interesting news releases which we receive from the State of Alaska and other sources, which we were unable to do in the past. In a sense, we will now be giving our readers more for their money.

Also, this will give us an opportunity to develop more local features, making the Knik Arm Courier more than ever the voice of the Greater Chugiak Area.

WARNING OF OVEN CANNING

PALMER: Oven canning is dangerous, warns Myrtle Bang, District Home Demonstration Agent.

The jars may seal during processing and explode. If this happens, each jar becomes a small pressure cooker. When 250 degrees F. is reached internal temperatures of 30 pounds or more per Reused or even new jars usually have some scratches or bruises which weakens them. For this reason one jar exploding is apt to set off the others. Flying glass and hot food can cause injury to the stove and people working in the kitchen.

There is a second danger in oven canning. The temperature of food in the jars does not get high enough to insure destruction of spoilage bacteria in vegetables unless it is processed for an unusually long

It is not possible to use tin cans in the oven because the sealing compound in the lids melts and therefore does not make a good seal.

A disadvantage of oven canning, is that often considerable liquid boils out of the jar.

SITKA: A visitor center furnished as a nineteenth century Russian tea room is being established at the Sitka ferry terminal by the Sitka Centennial Committee.

The tea room will be housed in a 55 year old Russian style bulging formerly located in Sitka's urban renewal area. It was obtained by the Committee through the cooperation of the Alaska Housing Authority.

Present plans call for enlarging the entry room of the building to accommodate tables so that visitors may be served tea, from samovars, and Russian delicacies.

Furnishings, such as the bed and chest of drawers of Priscilla Makstoutoff and other relics of Russian America will be displayed. The windows will be hung with the heavy drapery of the day and will bear shutters.

Sitka Chairman George Beacom said the tea room will be operating this summer although the total restoration will probably take two years. "When restoration is completed," Beacom said, "it will be a triumphant realization of the efforts of the hardworking team room subcommittee."

According to Mrs. Viola Belle Wilson, chairman of the subcommittee, business firms, civic organizations and individuals have offered to participate in the preparation of the grounds and in restoring the house.

Mrs. Wilson said that what is sought is "A Welcome that will be immediate and timeless for the visitor to Sitka in a way in which Alaska will bring back its early historic heritage--in this place."

SEA WAVE EXPOSES
RUSSIAN WARF

KODIAK: Destruction of the dock and warehouse along the waterfront at Kodiak by the March 27th sea waves resulted in the exposure of the original Russian stone warf, according to the Dr. Bob Johnson, president of the Kodiak and Aleutian Island Historical Society.

The warf, believed to date to 1792, is immediately in front of the Erskin House, constructed in 1793-94 by Alexander Baronov as a warehouse for fur storage and for his offices.

Dr. Johnson says the warf was built of stones laid into place by native and Russian labor. He describes it further as follows: "Three mooring rings spaced in the 100 foot length of warf are attached to huge anchors whose flukes and major parts of their shanks lie in cubicles within the warf, the ends of the shanks protruding through to attach to the rings...."

Founded in 1792 as St. Paul's Harbor by Baronov, Kodiak was the second headquarters site for the Shelekov-gGolikov Company. Move to the site from Three Saints Bay (southeastern Kodiak Island) was motivated by the attractions of a better harbor and an abundance of timber.

ANSWER: All monies collected from real and personal property taxes for the six-month period, July 1-Dec 31, in the Greater Chugiak Area will be used for the support of our local schools. The amount it is estimated will be collected for the period is $34,650.00.

QUESTION: What is the tax rate?

ANSWER: The tax will be at the rate of 9 mills per year, but since we will be paying for only a six month period, real and personal property will be taxed 4 1/2 mills.

QUESTION: Is real property assessed on the appraised valuation?

ANSWER: Real property is appraised at 100% true value, but is assessed at 70% of true value.

QUESTION: What is the valuation of real and personal property of the Borough?

ANSWER: City of Anchorage and the Anchorage Independent School District.....330 million
Greater Chugiak.....7 3/4 million
Girdwood.....3/4 million

QUESTION: How is the rate of taxation determined?

ANSWER: The Borough School Board develops a budget of costs of operating the school system of the Borough for the ensuing year. The fiscal officer of the Borough Assessors office has a record of the cost of assessment and collection of taxes and of the total value of real and personal property of the Borough. The dollars required to operate the school and assess and collect taxes divided by the assessed valuation gives the mill tax rate required.

QUESTION: Does any of the tax money collected from our area go to the City of Anchorage?

ANSWER: No. All tax monies collected for the six month period go into the general Borough school fund.

QUESTION: Who collects the taxes?
(next col)

ANSWER: The Borough collection and assessment office collects and taxes for schools from both the city and areas outside the city.

QUESTION: What are the arguments for and against Sales tax?

ANSWER: Prior to the Borough businessmen argued that a sales tax within the City would drive business to areas outside the city.

That argument would be invalidated with a boroughwide Sales tax. In previous attempts to get property owners to approve the sales tax, no guarantee was given that personal property tax would be eliminated if the Sales tax was adopted. It is argued that a Sales tax adversely affects the lower income groups and wage earners with large families to a greater degree than the taxpayer of high income.

The arguments for Sales tax vs. personal property tax are:

1. Personal property tax is difficult to administer and produces inequities in collection.
2. The privacy and sanctity of the home is invaded in process on its administration.
3. Collection and administrative costs of personal property tax is four to five times greater than for sales tax.
4. A sales tax increases the tax base by including those not now contributing to the support of schools, namely; residents who do not own property, tourists, temporary workers, military personnel, etc.
5. Sales tax is a pay-as-you-go tax.

QUESTION: If a sales tax is approved by the voters; what sales and services would be exempt?

ANSWER: The following EXEMPTIONS are recognized as being basic to a successful sales tax program, according to Ernst & Ernst, a recognized Management Service Organization.

1. Sales and services exempt by law, include sales to Government agencies and interstate commerce activities.
2. Casual sales typical of which is the sale of an automobile or furniture by an individual; infrequent food sales or bazaars conducted by churches or other non-profit organizations.
3. Sales for resale, where purchaser furnishes registration number. Sales for resale or wholesale sales are exempt from sales tax in order to avoid a pyramiding of taxes when goods or services are transferred from wholesaler to retailer and then to ultimate consumer.

4. Salaries and wages to unions, professional associations, clubs and other non-profit organizations.
6. School cafeteria sales student activities and school
7. Sales of newspapers.
8. Medical dental, hospital and burial services.
9. Premiums on insurance and fidelity funds.
10. Sales of real property, EXCEPT the sales commission earned by agents.

QUESTION: How would a businessman be effected by a Sales tax in the ANSWER: Again, Ernst & Ernst insists that registration of each company or person engaged in business or professional activities in the borough is one of the most important factors in the administration of a sound sale. tax program. "The form (on which sales for a given period are reported) would be designed in such a manner as to simplify both the preparation and subsequent processing of returns and would carry the registration number".

(next col)

Ernst & Ernst recommends a quarterly report of sales.

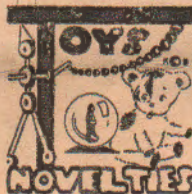

Under personal property tax, a businessman pays a tax on his inventory, which is not recovered under a sales tax system, the tax is collected at the time of the retail sale.

A one percent sales tax brings in approximately the same amount of revenue as the present personal property tax. It is estimated that approximately 45% of the revenue from a sales tax would come from sources not now contributing to the support of schools or other services.

Such an inspection and painting could be completed in two and a half days, according to Mangan. The Tustumena, on its inaugural voyage from Seattle will stop at all ferry stops in Southeastern Alaska and at Cordova and Valdeze before going on to her future ports of call--Seward, Kodiak, Seldovia, Homer and Anchorage.

The vessel's northward cruise will be arranged so that it will arrive in Anchorage on a Saturday night and then go into regular service.

BOX SOCIAL FINANCIAL SUCCESS

CHUGIAK: The box social held on Friday evening, July 17th, at the Chugiak Carnival Hall was considered a financial success by the members of the "Committee for Jim Ekstedt for the House of Representatives."

A large number of candidates from other sections of the district attended, as well as many of Mr. Ekstedt's local supporters.

After the gaily decorated boxes had been auctioned by Chuck Sassara, one of the candidates who acted as auctioneer, the winners claimed their supper partners, and satisfied murmurs were heard throughout the hall as the delicious contents of the boxes were revealed. The master of ceremonies introduced each of the candidates with a brief biographical sketch, and each extended his best wishes to Jim Ekstedt in his campaign.

Tell it to Martha

BY: MARTHA COUNCIL

Dear Martha,

Last week some friends were visiting and this fellow bent down and picked up a nickle that was laying on the ground in our yard.

He collects coins and is always looking to see if it is one he needs.

He said that this one was a coin that he needed for his collection, so I said "go ahead and keep it." He insisted in giving me another nickle for it, and then after we had swapped he told me that the coin he had found was a very rare one and worts quite a few dollars.

Well, this burned me up, and I told him that in this case I wanted back. He then told me it was too late, we had already swapped.

I think he cheated me, but he says that it is perfectly fair in coin collecting. Is it?

GYPPED

Dear Gypped,

I don't know what is considered fair among coin collectors. I would think however that if he had found a valuable coin on your property he should have either told you about it before he offered to "swap" or kept his mouth shut about it afterward.

apparently he takes delight in putting over a "fast deal" even on his friends, and I would not think his friendship was worth a plugged nickle.

MARTHA COUNCIL

A new beetle affecting strawberries has been reported in the Anchorage area, according to Dr. Richard Washburn, local experiment station entomologist. The beetle consumes the surface tissues of leaves, leaving only a skeleton remaining.

The insect has not been reported previously in Alaska, according to Washburn. The small beetle is about one-quarter inch long, brown or tan in color, and a member of the beetle family.

GIFT PRESENT TO A.M.U.

ANCHORAGE:
 The Anchorage Rotary Club donated $5,000 to the Alaska Methodist University at its June 30 meeting in the Anchorage-Westward Hotel. Outgoing president Ian Marshall-Pryde presented the gift to Dean O. W. Frost to be used in furnishing an international lounge in the new student union building being built on campus.

The lounge is expected to cost $10,000 and will be an informal center dedicated to the international fellowship of students. The local Rotary Club also makes scholarships available for foreign students at the University. Several overseas students, especially from Africa, have attended AMU since it opened.

Mr. Charles R. Allen, director of development, and Professor Chester C. Frisbie of AMU also attended the luncheon at which Dr. Don Dafoe was welcomed in as the new Rotary president.

Rotary International is an organization that has long been noted for its promotion of education and international goodwill.

INSECTS PLAGUE GARDEN SHRUBS

PALMER:

A number of insects are active on garden and ornamental plants, according to Leland Cade, district Extension agent.

Aphids have been reported on bird cherry or may day trees. These tiny soft-bodied insects cause blossoms to dry up and cause an objectionable honey to be produced, resulting in an unsightly plant. Aphids can be controlled with nicotine, nicotine or malathion. Nicofume must be used when the temperature is above 70 degrees.

The cutworm season should be pretty well over, according to Cade. Cutworms are active feeders when small, and pupate during mid-season after they get to be an inch long or larger. The size of the worms is a good way to predict the damage that they will cause in the future—the larger the worms, the less the damage for the remainder of the season. Since the adult is a miller and will migrate, there is no point in controlling the worms this year.

BISON HUNT FORMS NOW AVAILABLE

FAIRBANKS:

Application forms for this fall's bison hunt at Big Delta are now available, the Alaska department of fish and game has announced. The Delta hunt will take place in early October, according to regional game supervisor Frank Jones of Fairbanks.

The Alaskan board of fish and game has provided that up to 20 mature bison may be taken from the 350-animal Delta herd during the scheduled hunt. This is the same number taken during a similar permit hunt last year.

The permit applications are available at all department offices, Jones said. All applicants (except residents under 16) are required to have 1964 hunting licenses and to enter the license number of the permit application. Deadline for receipt of the completed applications is Aug. 15. Last year, over 2,000 people applied for the 20 permits available. Drawings for this year's permits are scheduled for early September.

The Delta hunt is one of two bison hunts scheduled this fall, according to division of game director James W. Brooks. The second hunt, for which no permits are required, will take place in the middle Copper River area east of Chitina, at about the same time as the Delta hunt. The Copper River hunt will be closed by field announcement when no more than 15 mature bison have been taken, Brooks said.

Lawn Weeds in Alaska

The pretty dandelion that signals the arrival of spring is often a welcome sight—but not in the middle of the lawn.

How you get rid of this lawn pest, and many others, is explained in a new Alaska Agricultural Experiment Station Bulletin, No. 34.

A dense stand of vigorous lawn grass is one of the best defenses against weeds, according to this bulletin. Using good, weed-free soil is another way. Fertilize well and keep traffic off the lawn; it may even be necessary to fumigate the soil. Good, northern-grown grass seed of the best adapted variety should be used.

Then there are other factors to consider like proper overall drainage, good soil free of debris and stones, and elimination of hard-packed areas. All this really adds up to a good seed bed to encourage rank growth.

In spite of all we can do, weeds will creep into the lawn and then the effective use of weed killers becomes important. Just what chemical to use for a particular plant pest will be found in the bulletin.

You will want to know what equipment to use and when to use it. Then the question of what rate at which to apply chemicals is important. Some chemicals work fine as weed killers at one rate and have almost the opposite effect at another.

Four easy rules for figuring the rate of delivery from your sprayer are given in the weed control bulletin.

Then if you are not sure what herbicide, active ingredient, acid equivalent, and a host of other terms used in chemical weed control mean, just turn to a section on definitions. There is a useful conversion table and a warning against careless use of chemicals.

When it comes to weed identification you will find all the common kinds explained in detail with carefully prepared sketches of each one. Even pictures of the roots are shown so everyone can understand just how the pest plants grow and spread.

(next col)

A few of the weeds you may have wondered how to control are horsetail, annual bluegrass, chickweed (that loves cool weather), and dandelion. These are some of Alaska's worst, but this bulletin, "Lawn Weeds—Identification and Control," will give the necessary answers on what to do about them.

No matter how much work you have done to have a good lawn, it will lose much of its attractiveness if weeds are showing up here and there over the surface. Perhaps it would be wise to heed the old proverb: "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and pick up your copy of the lawn weed bulletin 34 at your nearest cooperative Extension office or the Agricultural Research Station at Palmer.
