FLINT TO RUN FOR SCHOOL BOARD

EAGLE RIVER: Virgil Flint, of Eagle River, recent appointee to the Greater Anchorage Area Borough School Board, this week announced his intention to be a candidate for that office at the coming October 6th electron election.

Flint was temporarily appointed to fill the vacancy when School Board member Willis Avery resigned earlier in the month.

IMPORTANCE OF PRE-

REGISTRATION EMPHASIZED CHUGIAK: Glenn Briggs, Aseembly-ma from Section one emphasizes the importance that every resident of the area realize that they must pre-register if they are to be permitted to vote in the coming October 6th Borough election.

Briggs said that it must be remembered that this Borough election is in no way connected with the recent State primary, or the coming Gener-al election, and a separate regist-er of voters is being set up.

Registration booths are being man-ned at the Eagle River Shopping Cen-ter and at the Chugiak Post Office,

MISSING SISTERS CAUSE AREAWIDE SEARCH

EAGLE RIVER: When thee young Eagle River sisters decided on an overnight camping trip they made all of the necessary provisions with the exception of one minor one..they neglected to inform their parents of their plans. This touched off a search which lasted almost all of last Friday night and was resumed again on Saturday morning. Neighbors, state police and members of the Eagle River Volunteer Fire Company were out combing the area for fourteen year old Hazel Vincent and her sisters Donna 9 and Barbara

The girls father, Donald K. Vinc-ent of Eagle River said that the girls had apparently left around noon on Friday for a spot on the Eagle River behind the Bell ranch. The truants were spotted the following morning at around 7am by a neighbor John Kirsch who was as-sisting in the search. At the time he found them they were biking along the Eagle River Road on their way home. An air search for the girls which was being organized at Elmendorf Air Force Base was called off when it was learned that the trio was safe.

CHUGIAK: The opening of the new Chugiak High School this month is the occasion for a mammoth cel-ebration which is being planned by the OCHS (Operation Chugiak High School) committee,

A miseting of the executive board and representatives of nineteen of the twenty-six original organizations which composed OCHS was held last Friday, September 11th, at the Chu-glak Methodist Church. Plans for the celebration have turned over the chairmen of the var-ious committees which were organized there.

Special invitations will be extended to Governor Egan, as well as to others who had assisted the OCHS group dur- * ing the months when they were working toward convincing the State of Alaska that the Chuglak Area should have a High School.

. The date of the celebration will de-pend on when Governor Egan will be free to attend, but tentative plans are to hold it sometime during the last weekend in September or the first weekend in October. It is hoped to to be able to incorporate the celebration with an open house at the High School.

A second meeting of the twenty-six OCHS groups is planned before the date of the celebration. OCHS chairman Dale Pierson stated that the date for this meeting will depend on word from the office of Governor Egan on when he will be able to attend. Member organizations will be informed of the date by phone and mail.

This celebration will be open to all the residents of the Greater Chugiak Area.

Twenty two members and guests boarded a hay loaded truck in front of the Eagle River Shopping Center and along with Max Pyles as an anchor wood for the bon fire. The wait for chow was eased some-what by a portable stereo Phonograph and several portable radios, and it wasn't long before the bonfier was blazing merrily and the w iners were

FALL FIRE PREVENTION STRESSED

PALMER:

Tending the fire is always associated with the coming of fall, but burning the house down as a side show is never part of the plan, says Leland Cade, district Extension agent. If the house is to remain "Home Sweet Home," then proper precautions must be taken to prevent it from burning down.

Fires start most often from other fires—in the stove, that is. A hot stovepipe is enough to set nearby paper or wood on fire, which means that any-thing that will burn should not be near the stove or chimney It also means that anything near the stove that might burn and is in question should have appropriate insulation next to it, such as asbestos or a metal heat deflector.

Fires often start from machines improperly maintained such as the washing machine, toaster. kitchen ventilating fan, or dryer. The hazard of fir can be pretty much eliminated from household machines if they are properly maintained— kept clean, belts properly ad-justed, properly oiled, and properly wired with electricity.

Cigarettes are a common source of fire. Those who smoke should take it upon themselves to develop habits conducive to minimizing the hazard of fire. Plenty of ash trays will help to eliminate some of the hazard of smoking.

Fall is the season for start-ing fires and the season to make sure that prevention is in order, Cade concluded.

Dear Rusty, In these days of continuing drift toward complacancy, and "canned editor-ials" in some of our larger newspapers, it is refreshing to encounter an editorial policy such as yours, which allows anyone to express an opinion on any subject. I refer, of course to the BATTLE OF WORDS between Assemblyman Jerry

McCutcheon and Assemblyman Glenn Briggs. Discourses and debates of a constructive nature should always be welcomed and encouraged, since they provide us with a permanent record of their act or intentions concerning the several issues before the Assembly. Weatherproofing The House For Winter

By IVAN BRANTON

It's time to be getting the house ready for winter and one of the best ways to cut your heating costs is by reducing air leakage. (next col)

(weatherstripping) (weatherstripping)

Excessive air leakage into houses does three things: (1) increases heating costs, (2) increases redecorating costs be-cause of the dirty air that leaks in, and (3) makes the occupants of the house uncomfortable.

Air leakage occurs around windows, doors, and any cracks or open joints in the house. Weatherstripping of windows and doors controls air leakage more effectively than do storm sash, but storm sash reduces air leakage and heat loss through the glass or door. By carefully weatherstrip-ping windows and adding properly fitted storm sash, you can reduce heating costs as much as 20 per cent.

much as 20 per cent. In addition, the house will be cleaner and the tempera-ture will be more uniform. Storm sash should have a clearance between the sash and window frame of about ¼ inch (except at sill). If there is no clearance, they are difficult to install; and, if the sash swells, it will bind them in the frame and may cause warping and leakage. and leakage.

The seal is not along the edges of the sash, but along the inside surface where it comes in contact with the blind stop. If a good seal can-not be had with the hardware holding the sash in position attach felt or similar material to the sash,

Many houses have air leaks at the junction between the foundation and frame of house; between window frames and walls; and between door frames and walls. These leaks can be closed with a caulking gun using an elastic type caulking compound.

Metal window frames BS well as glass blocks set in basement walls should be carefully caulked to prevent excessive air leaks.

To make a house weatherproof, you need to:

1. Repair cracks or air leaks in walls, floors, and ceilings. 2. Caulk window and door frames. 3. Re-putty loose panes of glass.

4. Weatherstrip windows and doors.

5. Install storm sash and doors.

sense of responsibility of the people of the Greater Chuglak Area. They may be assured that their ef-forts will be amply rewarded."

Cline went on to say that the building appears to be a very fine plant in almost every respect. He concluded that "Their investment of time and energy will no doubt reap them many benefits during future years. Education is not an expense ... It is an investment in the total future growth of the whole nation."

Cline said that the enrollment at the High School on the first day was a total of 294 students, including those in the eighth grade.

First day enrollment at the Chuglak School which includes grades one through six was 345 students. En-

Save Your Crops:

Every year about this time, Old Mother Nature shows her authority by turning down her authority by turning down her thermostat for a night or two. Not quite for good, but usually long enough to put an end to tender growing things. The ad-ditional week or two of warmer weather that follows is often the difference between a good crop or none, but with dead plants there is nothing at all.

plants there is nothing at all. The home gardener can often save a good crop by being pre-pared for early frosts. The first idea is usually to cover the plant with something. A big piece of plastic will help if properly used, but laying it directly over the plant leaves gives very little protection. You should first make a light rou should first make a light frame to support the plastic sheet a few inches above the plant tops. Some of the heat radiated from the soil will be trapped by the plastic, and will help keep the air around the plant above freezing.

Of course, a double layer of plastic is much more effective than a single sheet. By adding a little heat from heaters plac-ed temporarily under the plas-tic cover, quite a heavy frost can be overcome.

Newspapers are often used, but they should be tied or weighted in place. Even so, they often blow away during the night.

"Blazo" cans give good pro-tection to the individual plants as do large cardboard boxes Loose hay also works fine, and can be left between rows for quick covering of plants when needed.

In any case, temporary cov-erings should be removed each day, or the plants will soon die, even if no frost can get at them. (next col)

Another common practice is to keep sprinklers turned on during the frost periods. Don't be alarmed if a little ice forms, but be sure to keep the sprinklers running, even after it warms up, until all the ice has melted again.

Firepots and small campfires around the home garden can save you from losing out to Old Man Frost. For those fortunate enough to have the garden on a slope, be sure to place the fires or heaters at the very bottom. The heat will move up the slope and prevent cold air from settling in that area. Old automobile tires make good fuel for frost fires at very low cost.

SCHOOLS RECEIVE MONEY State checks totaling $842,456 went out in the mail July 24 to five communities and three school districts in Southcentral Alaska which have experienced losses in revenue as a result of the March 27 earthquake and tidal waves.

A federal grant to cover such revenue losses as forwarded to the State, and the Legislature appro-priated money to cover requests received from the various com-munities and school districts.

Anchorage has now received $820,500; CORDOVA $70,500; Kod-iak $140,000; Girdwood School Dis-trict $843; Valdez $75,000; Anchor-age Independent School District $544,000; Homer $15,300; and Kod-iak Independent School District $24,000; Homer $15,300; and Kod-iak Independent School District $1,320.

These communities and school districts had applied for these gr-ants. The State has not yet re-ceived statements of revenue loss from Seward and other communi-ties affected by the March 27th disaster. It must have these be-fore funds can be made available. The federal grant is to cover losses over an 18-month period.

The amounts paid out to the communities and school districts represent 75% of their estimated revenue losses for the 1964 calen-dar year. At a later date, re-evaluations of these losses are to be made to determine what addibe made to determine what addi-tional advances might be made from the federal grant.

A total of eleven courses will be offered at Alaska Methodist University in the post session, which runs from August 3 through 21. Registration for the session will be held on August 3, and classes will begin the following day.

Several education courses are scheduled, as well as courses in biology, English, economics, geology and history. All classes will meet from 9 a.m. until noon and give three semseter-hours credit, many of them on the graduate level.

Dr. Manschrek, one of the foremost Reformation scholars in the world, is a professor at the Ohio Methodist Theological School and has written several books on the Reformation.

Two courses scheduled to be held in the field are field geology and ecology. Dr. Ross Schaff of AMU will conduct the geology class, for which field work in the Talkeetna Mountains is planned. Dr. Leonard Freese, also of AMU, will conduct ecology, and weekend field trips to Seward and Mt. Mc-Kinley, as well as to local points, are planned.
