GRADE 3A: There are 26 pupils in Mrs. Coleman's room. Four of these children haven't been in the Chuglak Schools before this year.

The class is working on a story in our reader that we will dramatize next week.

GRADE 4 (Mrs. Hildeman): About 2 weeks after school started, we went on a field trip. We saw some very interesting things. We saw many different kinds of mushrooms and plants. We went to the creek and panned for gold. We got a little bit. Mr. Powell showed us different things about trees. REPORTERS: Tim W. and Jane A.

GRADE 4 (Mrs. McGrew): The 4th graders went on a field trip. We left school at nine o'clock for Russian Jack Springs. When we got there we unpacked and formed six groups.

Then my group started down to the fishing bridge trail. We were looking for all kinds of leaves, moss, and other plants.

When we got to the bridge, we looked for fish, but we didn't see any. We saw a spring under a log in the water.

Then we got back on the trail. We walked along until we came to the Conservation Farm. Then we walked until we came to the spring. We panned for gold and got about 8 flakes. We came back on the spring trail.

When we got back to camp again we ate lunch and played. Then we went back to school.

Tell it to Martha

By Martha Council

Dear Martha,

This comes up every year, and I get so annoyed that I can't enjoy Christmas.

My brother owns a small department store in our home town. It used to be my Dad's, so I know all the angles.

My problem is my sister-in law. At the store they get all kinds of demonstration items and samples from salesmen. She saves these and gives them for Christmas gifts.

I can remember when we were kids, we used to sometimes give them as gifts to teachers and people who didn't matter too much, but to members of the family? Never! My sister-in law rationalizes that some of the stuff would be expensive if a person had to go out and buy it. This may be true, but it is the principal of the thing that galls me.

My brother makes good money at the store, more than my husband makes by a darn sight. We put out good money and sometimes go into hock to see that everyone has nice gifts at Christmas. I just hate to think of her giving us something that didn't cost her anything. What would you do?

Fed up

Dear Fed Up,

You picked the wrong person to give your problem sympathetic consideration. You touched on two of the things about Christmas that I feel strongly against. One is going into debt to give impressive gifts. The other is worrying how much someone paid for a gift for you.

However, I will try to look at your problem objectively. Your sister-in law is foolish to try to palm off free samples on someone who grew up with the business. I can't think of anything to stop her short of telling her how you feel, and that should solve your problems with her for all time...you would probably never hear from her again.

I'm afraid the only thing I can offer you is to try to live with the idea that gifts from that quarter will be of the free sample variety. Who knows, perhaps a fur salesman may leave them a sample mink coat some year.

Sincerely,

Martha Council

HERE AND THERE

By: R. Fleming

One of the most tragic situations with which I am acquainted is a town where school facilities are at least ten, if not fifteen years behind the very basic need for classrooms and equipment. The ancient elementary school building was a veritable fire-trap and when it was finally razed, one wondered why the old, dry material had not exploded through spontaneous combustion. One large building of the high school complex was used for years after it had been condemned. Usage finally terminated when state law held school board members and other officials personally responsible. Loss of the building simply made crowded conditions more so.

Bond issues for education were presented and voted down again and again. Finally, the bond election passed, and adequate facilities will soon be readied, about three years later. In the meantime irreparable damage has been done to the education of a generation of children. Inadequate facilities are not conducive to better teaching. And better teachers are not inclined to serve in communities which have shown little interest or support toward the school system.

An investment in education is perhaps the most profitable one that can be made, and, if you please, simply from a dollar and cents standpoint. To put it bluntly, in today's society, if a person is not sufficiently educated to be a productive citizen, he (or she) is then supported through welfare programs. It doesn't take a very sharp pencil to determine that it's a heck of a lot cheaper to educate than to support.

We of this borough are extremely fortunate to have the outstanding school system that exists here today. Personnel of our system at all levels, with few exceptions, are highly professional, capable and willing, and aware of our peculiar problems. But our paid personnel are not exclusively responsible for this school system; it also, and very importantly so, includes the citizenry - you and I. Let's keep this in mind when we vote on 5 October.
