TWO FIRE DISTRICTS VETOED BY LOCAL VOLUNTEERS

CHUGIAK: The proposition of a single fire district for the entire local area was vetoed by both the Chugiak and Eagle River volunteer fire companies at a joint meeting held last Firday night at the Chugiak VFW Hall in Eagle River.

The one Fire Ct mpany plan was the outcome of a public hearing held eaglier last week at the GAAB office earlier last week at the GAAB office in Anchorage in response to two petitions turned in by the local vol-unteers asking that the lareas they served be designated by the Borough as Fire Service Districts and the existing Fire Companies supported by Borough levied taxes.

After discussing the pros and cons of the single fire district concept, both groups agreed that it vould not be workable at this time and voted to ask the borough to ask the local voters to approve the Fire District for each area as petitioned with the boundary to be the precinct line between the Chugiak and Eagle River voting precincts.

The Borough assembly haisched-uled a second public hearing on the BIRCHWOOD: The completion of the Birchwood elementary school in time for the fall semester seemed unlikely, following the latest report from the local borough school board.

According to Date Pierson, local school board member, the select-ion of a definite site for the school still hinges on the results of exploratory drilling for water. drilling has not yet begun.

drilling has not yet begun.

Pierson, also pointed out that an unexpected drop in the local enrollment may rule out the necessity of double shifting the existing elementary schools as was previously thought would be necessary should the Birchwood school not be completed on schedule. leted on schedule

Pierson said that the total enrollment of the three local schools had dropped by 75 students from the fall of 1965 to the spring of 1966. He said that this is, to his knowledge, the first time that there has been any such drop in enrollment in the such drop in enrollment bistory of Chugiak area schools.

He said that a further evaluation of proposed enrollment will be held in August, but unless a sudden in-crease is evident, he feels that the need for double shifting will be unlikely.

Pierson pointed out that this trend of leveling out in school enrollment is a pattern that has been observed in all borough schools, and may result in a revision of school building plans on a boroughwide basis.

EAGLE RIVER MAN UN-HURT IN REAR SMASH

EKLUTNA: An Eagle River man was unhurt in a rear end collision which took place at mile 29 on July 4th.

There were no injuries to any of the drivers or passengers of the cars involved. Cogdell received a written warning on driving too fast for conditions.

... This week I am scheduled to testify before the House Subcommittee on Public Lands which will hold hearings on two of my bills affecting Alaska. One measure would allow the City of Kodiak to use 2.2 acres — transferred to the city several years ago for school purposes — for an urban renewal project. The other bill would clarify the methods by which lands held by the University of Alaska may be sold, leased or exchanged. The main purpose of the legislation is to make less restrictive the provisions for sale of lands held by the University when a sale or exchange of land would benefit the institution. I am a member of the Public Lands Subcommittee.

as a Member of Congress from Alaska — but as a member of the Subcommittee on Public Lands — I will participate in the meetings the Public Land Law Review Commission has set for Alaska starting this week-end. The Commission will stop briefly at Ketchikan on July 1; will be in Juneau off July 2; Sitka, July 3; Anchorage, July 4, 5 and 6; Fairbanks July 7 and 8. The Public Land Law Review Commission was established by Congress for the purpose of reviewing the laws, regulations, practices and procedures applicable to Federal public lands and to report to week" the House of Representatives, by a 374—10 yote, passed and sent to the Senate the bill to extend and improve the Federal-State unemployment compensation program. The bill — which I supported — extends coverage of the Federal-State unemployment insurance system to an estimated 3.5 million additional workers and establishes a permanent program of extended benefits to workers who exhaust their basic entitlement to unemployment compensation benefits during periods of high unemployment. The bill was rewritten by the Ways and Meaos Committee, which deleted controversial provisions before bringing it to the Floor.

Tell it to Martha

By: MARTHA COUNCIL

Dear Martha,

Dear Martha,

Of our four children only our youngest daughter completed high school and went on to college.

We were delighted, as we had always hoped to have at least one college graduate in the family my husband and I neither completed husband and I neither completed high school). We had saved in order to be able to put this girl through college, and she had only one year left to de this spring. You can imagine our shock and horror when she arrived home last week driving the highway in a beatup old wreck of a car, and intro-duced this boy we had never seen as her husband.

It turns out that he is a school mate of hers and they were secretly married just before school was out.

We are getting over the shock, and he seems like a nice enough young man. He also has one year left to do before he graduates. The thing that upsets us now, is that said that they daughter have decided that she should quit school-and go to work so that he can continue college without having to take an outside job as he as been doing to put himself through school.

Martha, this breaks our hearts, as we did so count on being able to see our daugther graduate.

Now to make matters even worse. our daughter has got the brain storm that since her dad and I had enough money saved to put her through her final year, we should give it to them as a wedding gift so that her husband can comp-lete his senior year without her having to support the both of them.

My husband and I have talked it over, and we don't know what to do.

We know it must seem selfish, but we just don't feel like financing the education of our son-in-law, It seems to us that he was doing such a good job of working his way through college, that he should not have taken on the responsibility of a wife when he had only one year left to do.

We are not wealthy, and had to sacrifice to save this money for our daughter's education. We wonder if we are being wrong in re-fusing to go along with her suggestion.

Confused parents

Dear parents,
No, I don't think you are wrong in not wanting to finance the education of your new son-in-law.

However, don't jump to the con-clusion that he is at fault for taking on the responsibility of a wife at this time.

Many young girls can do a very convincing job of talking their boy friends into the idea that they can help them along toward their diplimas, and many of them do. How-ever, since your daughter had originally decided that she wanted to iginally decided that she wanted to get a job and help her new husband while he completed as schooling, I think you should permit her to do just that. It will be better for both of them if they make this on their own, without any financial help from parents.

I can't help but wonder, if you. shouldn't get together with the young couple and see if you can't possibly persuade them to both try to finish college together. If your son-on-law was able to work his way through for three years, he surely can manage it the fourth. I think they would be happier in the long run if they don't have to look back and feel that one had to give up anything for the other.

Sincerely,

Martha Council

FAA TELLS NEW FREQUENCY

The Federal Aviation Agency in Alaska has sent a notice to airmen alerting them that it proposes to convert the present dual channel air-ground communications, frequencies 122.1 mc/s receive and 122.2 mc/s transmit, to a single channel operation by means of 122.1 mcs.
