

GOAL OFFERS FOOD STAMP & JOB PROGRAM

NEW YEAR BABY CONTEST KICK'S OFF

CHUGIAK: Once again the Knik Arm Courier is undertaking the sponsorship of the annual New Year Baby contest in the Greater Chugliak Area.

Local business establishments will be invited to offer gifts of merchandise and services to the parents of the first baby born to a family who live anywhere between Eagle River and Eklutna after midnight December 31st, 1968.

The Courier will again start the "pot" with the offer of a $25 Savings Bond for the new arrival. Other gifts will be listed in succeeding issues of the Courier as they are pledged.

To be eligible for this jackpot of gifts, the parents need only to live in this area. The baby may be born at either of the three Anchorage Hospitals, at the ANS Hospital, at the 5040th Air Force Hospital or at the Valley Presbyterian Hospital in Palmer.

Although the Courier tries to get the information on new babies with local addresses from the hospitals, it is much easier if parents who are expecting their baby on or around January 1st let the Courier know, so they will be on the lookout for them. However, it is not necessary to "sign-up", or "register", and the past there have been winners who didn't even know they were in a race.

Anyone wishing to pledge a gift may call the Knik Arm Courier, 688-2513 and list their pledge. The name of the business and their gift will be listed in each issue of the Courier. Gifts for Mom or Dad, as well as for the new baby are always welcome.

Gifts lists in the past have totaled over $200. It is anticipated that this year the value will be the highest ever.

LOCAL KIDS TREATED TO SWIMMING

CHUGIAK: Local businessman William Knight, operator of K & E Bus Lines is providing transportation for 50 students from Chugliak and Eagle River Elementary Schools to the Anchorage Spa for an hour of free swimming.

The swimming is sponsored by the Anchorage Insurance Agents Association.

Normally the students attending these free sessions are members of the school safety patrol such as at Eagle River. Since Chugliak Elementary has no need for a patrol, its students are chosen for their outstanding service and successful dedication to the school.

Emerson Sartore, Chugliak Elementary School Principal, stated "It is through community minded businessmen, such as Mr. Knight, that our local students are able to enjoy some of the same privileges as those living in Anchorage".

TOW CAR HITS BRIDGE

EAGLE RIVER: A vehicle which was towing a second car spun out on the ice on Eagle River hill and struck the bridge railing.

The driver, Earnie Newman of Peters Creek suffered a cut over his eye and was taken to the 5040th Air Force Hospital by the Eagle River Volunteer Fire Company ambulance.

The accident took place at 5:00pm on November 27th.

Alaska State Troopers estimated the damage to Newman's 1957 Chevrolet pickup at $200.

The applications for the food stamp program will be taken at a date to be announced soon.

This past week, Dr. Beirne, who is with ACCA conducted a clinic for testing the hearing and vision of four year olds at the Community Center.

Other community Center programs include knitting classes every Tuesday at 10:00am, with sewing classes to begin next week.

On Wednesday, December 4th, Hulda Samuelson from the Nome Extension office will be at the Center with ideas on Christmas buying.

All these classes are open to any interested person in the community.

Also available through the Center are referrals for Welfare, Legal services and employment.

IMITATION MILK IN ALASKA

COLLEGE: Imitation milk has caused uneasiness among dairy farmers all across the nation. This development is particularly unnerving to Alaska dairy farmers because imitation milk can achieve a much greater price differential here than it can in other states.

As part of a 60 day survey of the Alaskan dairy industry last summer (1968), dairy marketing specialist Walter Snyder - who is associate professor of dairy marketing at Colorado State University - was contracted by the Agricultural Experiment Station Service of the University of Alaska, and the State Division of Agriculture to study the industry.

The summer, 1968, survey revealed a 30 to 30 cent price differential between half-gallons of "Type I" imitation milk and homogenized fluid milk, Type I imitation is actually "filled" or "Modified" milk. It contains non-fat milk solids combined with vegetable fat, vitamins, milk sugar, an emulsifier and a thickening agent.

The most active promotion and merchandising was in the Anchorage area. Prices ranged from 49 to 59 cents per half gallon, sometimes with two half-gallons offered free to new customers. Store managers varied in their enthusiasm for the new product. But overall, the store inventory and display space given to imitation milk - even in the Anchorage area -- was not indicative of a bit promotion effort. Stores visited at Homer, Seward, Valdez and Kodiak did not stock the product at all.

Despite the wide price difference, Type I imitation milk was not doing any better on Alaskan markets than it had on markets in Arizona. The price difference in Arizona is only 7 to 10 cents per half gallon. But on both Arizona and Alaskan markets, sales of Type I imitation labeled on at 10 to 15 percent of fluid milk sales.

What has been the impact of imitation milk on fluid milk sales? The effect on fresh milk sales has not been very great. The market for imitation milk developed largely from an overall increase in milk sales, with some inroads on the sale of recombined milk.

Although imitation milk has a great price advantage, consumers are still willing to pay more for such differences as "flavor acceptability." Price alone will not entice customer for imitation milk. Future markets for imitation milk depend significantly on the ability of "flavor-additive chemists" to simulate milk flavors and to mask objectionable flavors of certain ingredients.

The "acceptability problem" with imitation milk seems even greater if you consider its storage tolerance. For example, a spot check was made on the keeping quality of imitation brands marketed in Alaska. After 12 days in a household refrigerator at 42-54 degrees, all five brands deteriorated somewhat in quality. Homogenized fresh milk - included in the same test - remained sweet

The five brands of imitation milk being sold on the Alaska market were all "Type I" filled milks. Type I milk being sold on the Alaska markets is produced at three processing plants in the Anchorage area. The product is labeled "Imitation Milk" in compliance with State law pertaining to...

GAACA BUDGET ACCEPTED

ANCHORAGE: At the November meeting, the Board of Trustees of the Greater Anchorage Area Community Action Agency (GAACA) voted to accept the proposed budget for program year "C". Program year "C" is the twelve month period ending January 31, 1970.

While there was a considerable amount of discussion on some of the proposed programs, the vote by the board to accept the proposed budget allows the Executive Director to forward the proposed programs to the Western Regional Office of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) for its evaluation and funding.

The total cost of the proposed programs will be just over 701,000 dollars. Of this amount, $497,000 will be requested from Federal sources. The rest will have to be raised elsewhere.

Other actions taken by the board included accepting the recommendation of the ESEA Title I Library study committee to approve the School Districts revised Title I library plan. Some of the programs at the Chugiak and Birchwood Elementary Schools libraries are funded through this source.

Also a request by a private group to use the GAACAAs name in soliciting funds for a questionable Christmas party for needy children in Anchorage was refused.

Frank Austin, who represents GOAL Council of the Greater Chugiak Area on the GAACA Board of Trustees was selected to represent that group on the Board of Directors of the Alaska Planning and Evaluation Center (APEC). APEC is a subsidiary of the Institute of Social Economic and Government Research of the University of Alaska. APEC has the task of evaluating the programs funded by OEO in Alaska.

A resume of the proposed programs for program year "C", will be presented at the next meeting of the GOAL Council.

The next meeting of the GOAL Council will be at 7:30pm on December 10th at the Chugiak Methodist Church.

Nominations to fill vacancies on the Board of Directors of the GOAL Council will be the major item of business on the agenda.

SPECIAL XMAS ISSUE OF COURIER IS PLANNED

CHUGIAK: This year, once again the Knik Arm Courier will publish a special Christmas issue.

In this issue, local merchants will be offered the opportunity to publish Christmas Card type of advertisements which will enable them to offer holiday greeting to their friends and patrons.

These ads are available in a religious, traditional and contemporary motif, and in a variety of sizes.

Because of the time involved in making up this special issue, the Courier is asking those interested in placing one of these ads to contact the newspaper and reserve the space. Billing for this advertising will not be until after January 1st.

itation milk. Other imitation milks - Type II and Type III - could appear on Alaskan markets, but their appearance may be delayed because of the large price advantage already obtained with Type I. Type II and Type III imitations can be produced at even lower costs than Type I.

Type II imitation contains sodium caseinate (milk protein) water, vegetable oil, corn syrup solids, emulsifiers and stabilizers. In Type III imitation, the sodium caseinate would be replaced with vegetable proteins - making it a wholly vegetable product.

Further developments in marketing of imitation milks depend partly on how farmers react to the situation. The dairy industry has a choice of either resisting or encouraging development of these new products. Conceivably the farmer could benefit from joining, if the new 'imitation' products result in an increased volume of sales.

So far dairy farmers have mostly fought the competition. In the lower 48 states, Type I products are competing with Class I fluid milk, and dairy farmers are demanding that imitation milk handlers make "compensatory payment" to the "pool". Farmers are also asking for a higher price on non-fat dry milk solids used in imitation milk.

If farmers drive up the cost of milk solids, this would reduce the cost spread between fluid milk and Type I imitation. In reaction to this, processors would very likely try to regain their price advantage. Type II and Type III imitation milks can be produced for about half the cost of Class I (Grade A) fluid milk.

Type II and Type III would probably not fall under jurisdiction of the Alaska Imitation Milk Act, as Type I does. More likely they would be regulated by the Food and Drug Divisions (federal and state), with no restrictions on interstate trade.

Assuming that imitation milk products are on the market to stay, Alaska dairy farmers have some difficult decisions to make. If they attempt to cooperate with Type I processors, the product may cut into sales of Class I fluid milk. On the other hand, heavy resistance may force development of Type II and Type III imitations - which would mean less sales of milk solids.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration must also be figured into this already complex situation. They are considering a requirement that imitation milk products include on the package wording such as: "Not a nutritionally equivalent substitute for milk". Any such requirements by the FDA might stimulate imitation processors to make their products more "nutritionally equivalent" to milk. Again, this would mean higher costs for the processor, part of which may be paid to the farmer.

The nutritional quality of imitation milk - aside from being a competitive factor - is a matter of broad national concern. The evidence coming from consumers nutrition studies shows that the nutritional well-being of Americans - even of the so-called "Well Fed" -- is widely below standard. Imitation milks might play a role in improving this situation, but it will be up to the dairy industry to offer the best and most nutritious product possible. At the same time it seems likely that imitation food products would result in a profitable expansion of markets for the dairy industry.

OPAG NEWS

By: Pat Sherman OPAG COMMUNITY AIDE

About a month ago, this reporters storage cabin was invaded by a group of small "good neighbor" elves. They appeared to be little girls between seven and eight years old, led by one larger elf.

When I peeped out of my window the elves were busily loading boxes onto sleds, and whisking them away. Each time I heard a giggle, I spied them taking more boxes or returning some that they had spirited away earlier in the day. They were tagging, and pulling sleds up the hill to their leaders home. There they sorted, boxed and cataloged the contents of the boxes.

These hard working little elves, led by Mrs. Jackie Conlon were Brownies from Troop 158. They were industriously sorting used clothing which had been collected by G.O.A.L. members for needy families, or a future rummage sale.

Through donations from all the "Good Neighbors" in the Community we have been able to othe individuals, and entire families.

We hope to be able to have a rummage sale in the near future in order to raise money to help the programs sponsored by G.O.A.L.

O.P.A.G., the program for older people is one of this group.

By working together we are able to reach people who are interested in one of the programs or need assistance.

If anyone has unwanted household items, white elephants, or toys, we will appreciate their donations. Since we have limited storage space at present, we cannot store furniture unless it is small end tables, lamps etc.

Our new "Good Neighbors" for the week are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reeves who have donated a Quonset Hut to be used as a center for the older persons in the Greater Chugiak communities. We cannot thank them enough for their generous gift.

At present we are looking for land, and way to move the quonset.

Our "Good Neighbors" the J. Connells of Eagle River thoroughly enjoyed their Thanksgiving guest from O.P.A.G. The guest spend a day filled with happiness visiting and dining with new found friends. The other invited guest was ill, so could not attend, but after dinner the Connells took a generous supply of Thanksgiving goodies to both of their guests homes. The Connells were very pleased with their visit with the older persons and plan to continue visiting them in the future.

A brief outline of the services being offered by O.P.A.G. is listed below:

MONDAY: 1 to 3pm. Low-priced hair sets for ladies.

TUESDAY: 10 to 12am: Free knitting lessons.

WEDNESDAY: 1 to 3pm. Low priced haircuts for men.

For appointments, transportation and further information call Pat Sherman 688-2110, or Peg Tissington, 688-2318.

MUSTANG EXPRESS
News and Activities of Chugiak High School

By: Mitch Newman

The Western Alaska High Schools have undergone a slight classification change that will effect Mustang Basketball this year.

In previous years the eight most populous schools in Western Alaska have been labeled "Class A" and all have had a chance to compete in the Western Alaska Championships, and possibly go to the State Championship.

This year the four largest Western Alaska High Schools, East Anchorage, West Anchorage, Dimond and Lathrop at Fairbanks have been grouped into a new Double A (AA), classification. Four other schools, Chugiak, Palmer, Kenai, and Eilson are making up the A Classification.

For Chugiak this means that the Mustangs can only compete in the Western Alaska Class A Championships and have no chance to compete in the Western Alaska Class AA Championship games, the winner of which will go to the State meet and play the Southeastern Basketball Championship.

This new ruling is unfortunate for Chugiak, because of all the five years it has had a Basketball team, this is the one year the chances are very good that it could beat the larger schools in Western Alaska and go on to play the Southeastern Champion

"The demand for good accountants exceeds the local supply," Mr. Scott told the "Careers" committee.

How high school students can prepare to get into this field will be discussed. After the meeting the students will be given a tour of the Peat, Marwick and Mitchell offices at 736 G St.

Invitations to attend this program have been sent to all mathematics and accounting instructors and their classes at all of the Anchorage Borough School District high schools.

Tell it to Martha

By: Martha Council

Dear Martha,
I want to take this time to tell you how I enjoy the cartoon strip Little Midge that appears in your newspaper.

The one last week prompted me to ask your opinion on how to handle a situation like that which frequently happens in real life.

If a child does something wrong and comes to you and confesses, should you or should you not punish him?

If you do punish him, then this will discourage him from telling the truth in the future. If you don't punish him, then he knows that all he has to do is confess and he can go unpunished for any mischief.

Is there any way to handle a situation like this?

Puzzled Mother

Dear Puzzled Mother,
This problem has been puzzling parents ever since George Washington chopped down the cherry tree.

I like to take the stand of a suspended sentence. For example if the act the child is guilty of is bad enough to warrant say....the loss of his allowance for a week; if the boy confessed to what he had done

I would take away only half of his allowance. I would tell him that he deserved to lose his allowance for a week, but since he had told the truth, I was letting him off lightly. In that way he isn't going unpunished, but has learned that truthfulness will lessen the punishment.

Sincerely,

Martha Council
